Quote from CNN:

“7. Djmaa el Fna, Marrakech, Morocco

“If any city has a vast expanse of street theater at its beating heart, it’s this Moroccan metropolis where Moorish influences give way to a throbbing African pulse.

“This huge empty space over which the sun rises comes to life from mid-afternoon as the local characters creep in -- storytellers, snake charmers, musicians, Berber apothecaries, henna-painters and lady-boy dancers.

“First-floor cafes are the best places to overlook the action as the scene unfolds, but when night closes in and smoke starts rising from the food stalls, it’s time to join the crowds at trestle tables for a UD$5 feast of grilled meats and flatbread....”
