Amine BERQIA is associate professor in University Med V, Morocco where he teaches informatics, computer, wireless and mobile networks. He earned the B.Sc. and the M.S. in Applied Mathematics from the University Med V, Morocco. He holds a Ph.D. degree in Computer Sciences from the University of Dijon, France. He was Assistant Professor at University of Geneva and Coordinator of the Swiss Virtual Campus Project VITELS from 2000 to 2003. He was Professor Auxiliar at university of Algarve, Portugal. Since 2007, Dr. Berqia is serving as the Vice-president of EATIS, a Euro American research group on Telematics and Information System. Also, since 2008, he is serving as the Vice-President of the Electronic Next Generation Network (e-NGN) research group for Africa and Middle-East which he co-founded. He is member of IEEE. He has served as chair or co-chair in several international conferences (NGNS´12, IEEE EDUCON 2012, NGNS'10, EATIS2007, NOTERE2007...). He is taking part of several international conference program committees. He published more than 50 papers in journals and conferences in the areas of Networks performance, New Generation of learning. In 2012 Dr. Amine Berqia was awarded by IEEE Education Society in recognition and appreciation for his valued services and contributions as 2012 IEEE Educon conference Organizing Committee Chair.